On Wednesday, July 8, 2009, Conservation Plainfield will be hosting a seminar at the Plainfield Public Library, 15025 S. Illinois Street, Plainfield, IL 60544. Jack Pizzo, from Pizzo & Associates will be presenting on the topic of Pond Management from 7-8:30 p.m.

The seminar will be focused on the issue of water quality and an overview of factors that influence the overall quality of water. Environmental sustainability will be discussed and how it relates to water quality. We encourage anyone interested in conservation and learning about sustainable methods for improving water quality to attend. The event is free and open to the public.

Conservation Plainfield was founded in 2001 as a cooperative venture of various government agencies and residents in the Plainfield community. Conservation Plainfield is a not-for-profit corporation in the State of Illinois proactive in planning for a sustainable future. Conservation Plainfield's mission is executed through various programs, events, classes and projects. The mission of Conservation Plainfield is to raise awareness of ecological issues in the Plainfield area, increase public appreciation of the environment and be proactive in planning for a sustainable future.
